Measuring Discriminations

INTERDISCIPLINARY CONFERENCE, ECONOMICS, SOCIOLOGY AND LAW

Université d'Evry Val d'Essonne, France in the south suburb of Paris

In many European countries, there is a gap between an increasing concern about discrimination issues and the limited number of scientific contributions dealing with this issue. This meeting aims to gather all contributions on the definition and measurement of discrimination. This includes works in Economics, Sociology and Law. The topics covered include hiring, training, unemployment, promotion, career evolution, wages, housing and the access to collective goods (school etc.). In these fields, we are interested in discrimination based on gender, age, nationality, race, handicap or location. Contributions can be based on any kind of data sources.

Keynote Speakers

Ronald L. OAXACA, University of Arizona
